

DiALAB Series - November 29 to December 5, 2026, Salvador, Brazil
Applications open until July 24, 2026

1. Introduction

With the growth of the streaming market largely driven by studio investments in series production, we created DiALAB Series to foster the development of professionals and their serialized narrative projects, both fiction and non-fiction, through an immersive program with consulting activities, workshops, case studies, and masterclasses.

2. Activities

We will offer specialized training aimed at improving serialized narratives in both fiction and non-fiction genres authored by Black screenwriters, providing them with tools to expand their business opportunities within the industry.

In 2025, the DiALAB Series will offer a program aimed at enhancing the development work of the selected projects, which consists of:

- Online Module: between October 26 and 30, 2026 - Meetings focused on the structural aspects of the projects;
 - In-Person Module: between November 29th and December 5th, 2026 - Seven days of in-person immersion in a conducive workspace with consulting activities and business opportunities;
- The full DiALAB Series program will be available after the selected projects are announced.

3. Dates and Participation

Registration for the DiALAB Series can be done until 6:00 PM (Brasilia time/UTC-3) on July 24, 2026 by filling out the online registration form.

Black individuals, over 18 years of age, from any country in the world, with fiction or non-fiction series projects in development, are eligible to apply.

Only project submissions in Portuguese or Spanish will be considered. The laboratory's activities will be conducted primarily in Portuguese.

To participate in the DiALAB Series, projects must have a screenwriter and a producer who confirm their full participation in the laboratory activities, which will be held in person in Salvador, Bahia, Brazil, between November 29 and December 5, 2026, in addition to online assistance activities prior to the date of the in-person stage.

The selected projects will be announced in the second half of September 2026 through DiALAB's official channels.
